Kobe lost a couple of ounces in the past 9 days; he weighs 2.32 pounds today. He has a slightly elevated temperature of 103.9F. That along with the eye discharge and sneezing are all likely due to the upper respiratory infection. His lungs are still clear; no indication of pneumonia at this time.

We will keep him on the oral antibiotic and add on Nutrical for caloric supplement. If his appetite does not continue to improve, we may need to add on nasal drops and appetite stimulant. May also need to pursue diagnostics i.e. FeLV/FIV test, radiographs.

Rx: Clavamox Drops --- Give 0.5 ml by mouth twice daily for 2 weeks or until finished. Antibiotic.
Shake Well and Keep Refrigerated..tnt

Rx: NutriCal --- Give 2 ml by mouth once to twice daily or as directed for caloric supplement (when not eating much)....tnt

Please call if sneezing worsens and/or stops eating.

Unless problems, follow-up in 2 weeks to check temperature and possible vaccines..tnt
