Macy gained 3 pounds and is at 61.1 pounds today. The growth by her right ear is slightly larger, about 2 cm long now (was 1.75 cm in Feb). But as we discussed previously, there is not much we can do other than surgically removing it. We can schedule the surgery if you decide to pursue it. There's no infection; no medical treatment needed at this time.

There were a couple of small 3-4 mm diameter cysts around the left ear. But they were small and did not need draining. No other masses noted.

Her ears look ok today. Some wax build-up and debris that the groomer may be able to clean with her bath.

Try increasing the cat food portion to 75% and lower the dog food to 25% to see if that will help with her bowel movements.

If no stool for 2 days, try walking her longer since you noted that usually stimulate her to defecate.

As we discussed, there are medications and treatment for her eyes etc.. but since she does not cooperate, best we can do now is have you wipe her eyes as needed at home.

Please call if you have any concerns and/or if you decide to pursue any of the diagnostics / treatments discussed.

Please call with an update in 4 weeks re: stool.
